

Teach Yourself YouTube in 10 Minutes

Clara Harold

I was really impressed with the book Sams Teach Yourself YouTube in 10 Minutes. It's a book about everything you wanted to know about YouTube, from how to sign on to picking out software for editing and preparing a video.

YouTube is a video sharing community. That means that YouTube users can both upload and view all sorts of video clips online, using any web browser.

There are great tips on how to sign up for YouTube and navigate the home page. You learn how to browse, easily searching for videos that are of interest to you. You get tips on how to watch them, give them a rating, save them in your computer and even report offensive ones.

The author explains how to make a Quick List and save your favorite videos for watching in the future, with information how to add to your Quick List or Play List.

You can set up your own channel where all the videos that you upload are kept. There is information on how to embed videos on your own web site and manage your subscription.

Chapters 13 through 26 deal with how to shoot good video, using different cameras and how to edit. Miller also included information on different editing programs, types of files to keep it in, audio, and the pros and cons of a web camera. It is very easy to understand and good information for beginners.

The information on how to customize your YouTube channel, enabling and disabling comments from viewers and tracking viewership is to the point and very easy to follow.

I recommend this book as a great stocking stuffer gift for family and friends.

About: SAMS Teach Yourself YouTube in 10 Minutes

Author: Michael Miller
Publisher: SAMS
www.informit.com/sams
ISBN-10: 0672330865
ISBN-13: 978-0672330865
Price: $14.99, $11.69 @ Amazon

*Silvered fronds –
Photograph by Tucson nature photographer Paul Royston*